The God of All Blessings

Tim Dooley

For a basic understanding of the letter to the church at Ephesus, one can simply divide the book in half: In the first three chapters, we consider what God has done for us. He has blessed us with all spiritual blessings (1:3); He has predestined us (1:5); He has made us acceptable, redeemed, and forgiven (1:6-7); He has made known to us the mystery of his will (1:9); He has given us an inheritance (1:11); He has made us alive from the dead (2:1); He has given us a place to sit with Christ (2:6); He has brought us near to Him by the blood of Christ (2:13); He has made us citizens of His kingdom (2:19); and He has given us knowledge through the written, inspired word (3:4).

In chapters four through six Paul then enumerates what our response to God's love should be. We should walk worthy of our calling (4:1); we should keep the unity of the Spirit (4:3); we should put off the old man and put on the new man (4:22-24); we should work to give in serving those in need (4:28); we should be kind (4:32); we should have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness (5:6-12); we should be understanding of God's will and be filled with the Spirit (5:15-18); we should be thankful and submissive (5:20-21); and we should conduct ourselves as faithful Christians in every earthly relationship (5:21-6:9).

Last Sunday we thought about what Christ demands and expects of us in response to what God has done for us. The question remains, "Can I do more?" Finally, brethren, be strong and put on the whole armor of God. Considering what God has done for you, how should you respond to Him?
