Church Calendar

For What Do We Grieve?

Tim Dooley

In Lamentations, we notice how personally Jeremiah takes the punishment of Judah and Jerusalem. They've been removed due to their sin, sin which he pleaded with them to repent of, but they refused. Jeremiah's heart is broken over the desolation of the once great city of David and the derision spewed forth toward its remains. But amid his wailing, he reminds himself, and the people of God, of the wonderful mercies of the Lord and the impending judgment upon His enemies.

When the church falls into sin, do we mourn over her destruction? Do we weep over the ridicule hurled at her by her enemies? Do we seek the mercy of the Lord, His judgment upon His enemies, and a restoration of the old ways? Do we weep over the sins of our day? Do we care for the lost and dying? If every Christian grieved like Jeremiah, consider just how strong and glorious the kingdom on earth would be. How Christ would be exalted. How God would be glorified. It starts with me!
